Counseling and Psychological Services

Part A: Self-Assessment

Strengths, Skills, Competencies

Clinical

- Individual
 - My theoretical orientation (Integrative: client-centered and CBT) guides my work and has strong evidence to support positive outcomes for a wide-range of students
 - I have over nine years of experience working with adolescents and young adults (12 – 25) in a variety of settings (counseling center; outpatient; residential; forensic) with various concerns (anxiety/depression; substance abuse/eating disorders)
 - My OQ-45 and Student Satisfaction Surveys results suggest mostly positive outcomes for my clients
- Group
 - I have extensive training and experience running multiple groups (general process, anxiety, depression, CBT, substance use, video game use, autism, etc.)
 - I am intrapersonally insightful and interpersonally aware of shifting relational dynamics
- Assessment
 - I proficiently conducted over 250 psychological evaluations (cognitive, achievement, personality, projective)
 - I am particularly familiar with psychological measures designed to assess teens and young adults

Teaching Skill

- I taught undergraduate classes at BYU and UVU since 2010
- I exhibit competency as an instructor and am passionate about teaching
- My teaching philosophy guides my instruction and aims to build knowledge, application, and critical thinking skills

Research

- I consistently average one scholarly dissemination a year, in addition to BYU radio broadcasts, invited presentations, and guest lecture requests

Interests/Opportunities

- Research interests: Treatment outcomes, Gaming Disorder, and rapid responders in treatment
 - Dissertation: Youth motivation as a predictor of treatment outcomes
- Member of Green Chair and Whiff Busters research teams
- Liaison for Religious Education Department

Areas for further development:

Clinical

- Supervise graduate practicum students
- Have my faculty mentor, and other professionals, review my video recorded sessions
- Refine my practice working with couples/families

Teaching

- Use CTL resources: Mid-semester evaluations and student consultants (SCOTs)
- Review student feedback both formally and informally, and adjust accordingly
- Attend consultation meetings with other Career Exploration instructors

Scholarship

- Collaborate with my mentor to determine which conferences to attend and which journals might be best to submit my current articles in preparation
- Continue collaboration on Green Chair; attend weekly meetings
- Mentor undergraduate and graduate students

Part B: Professional Goals/Plans

Clinical Service

- Become ABPP certified before February 2019
- Bring recorded therapy sessions to my mentor for review, once a term
- Meet or exceed current and future CAPS requirements for direct service to students including intakes, individual sessions, and group efficiency guidelines

Teaching

- Collaborate with other Student Development (117, 358R) instructors to refine my course
- Increase experiential learning and application components, decrease lecture and data dumps
- Request SCOT feedback from CTL
- Administer mid-semester evaluations, and make necessary adjustments

Citizenship

- Attend all committee meetings and let my voice be heard in larger group meetings
- Continue to volunteer for CAPS Outreach activities to develop relationships with broader campus community

Scholarship

- Attend and present at national/international conferences (APA, AGPA, SPR) and network with other professionals
- Investigate APA and UPA memberships
- Attend Green Chair and Whiff Busters research teams
 - Contribute substantially to IRB proposals, data gathering, and writing efforts

Part C: Relationship between individual goals and departmental/university aspirations and needs

The mission of the Counseling and Career Center is "to assist students in fulfilling their educational goals by helping them overcome obstacles that interfere with their ability to succeed in college." (CAPS Policies/Procedures Manual 2014). This fits in with the overall mission of the university to assist individuals in their quest for perfection and eternal life. That assistance should provide a period of intensive learning in a stimulating setting where a commitment to excellence is expected and the full realization of human potential is pursued.

...Such a broadly prepared individual will not only be capable of meeting personal challenge and change but will also bring strength to others in the tasks of home and family life, social relationships, civic duty, and service to mankind. (BYU Mission Statement, emphasis added)

As a psychologist for BYU's CAPS, my primary responsibility is to assist students during the many "personal challenges and changes" they will encounter on their quest for eternal life. College is a psychologically demanding experience, and I believe that I can best help students achieve their goals by being an excellent psychologist and professor. The goals outlined in this document will help me improve and strengthen my ability to assist students in both their short-term goals while at the university, and their eternal goals well beyond my immediate interaction with them. Additionally, my growth will contribute to helping CAPS, the CCC, and Student Life accomplish their missions within the overarching mission of BYU.

Part D: Required Resources

- Weekly/bi-weekly mentoring from Davey Erekson
- Continued access to applicable technology to support both clinical and scholarly endeavors
- Continued consultation and support from CAPS colleagues and other university faculty
- Stewardship meetings with Clinical and Departmental directors to review my progress and correct any concerns in my performance
- Assistance from CTL in revising and evaluating my teaching performance and class goals
- Funding (both internal and possibly in collaboration with other departments) for travel to relevant conferences/workshops and to offset costs of research projects (thank you for the E4 Wristbands!)

Part E: Progress thus far

- Established a regular time to meet with my mentor
- Obtained video camera and microphone to allow for recording sessions
- Administered and responded to mid-course evaluations in my 117 and 358R classes
- Volunteered for multiple outreach opportunities
- Presented at UUCCC conference and Autism Translational Research Workshop
- Actively participating in research team projects where I am the first author

Citizenship Project

Goal:

To strengthen collaborative relationships with colleagues within my department, the BYU Campus community, and broader professional community.

1. Strengthen relationships within the Counseling and Career Center

- Invite colleagues to watch movies or play chess together during lunch, particularly those who may be less familiar with other colleagues in the center
- Attend all assigned committee meetings as an active participant
- Attend social and professional functions hosted by the department. Make an effort to get to know colleagues with whom I am less familiar
- Attend and be an active participant in therapy team meetings. Bring no other work into the meeting to work on; instead, listen and contribute to the discussion

2. Strengthen relationships within the BYU community

- Collaborate on a research project with a colleague from a different department (Shannon Tass)
- Work with Dr. Ben Salazar and Dr. Clint Hobbs to foster a closer relationship with BYU housing
- Attend housing committee meetings where they are addressing psychological concerns of residents
- Continue to volunteer for outreach opportunities to speak to other departments about psychological concerns they may have (Religious Education)
- Look for opportunities to socialize with colleagues from other departments to learn about their interests and the research activities in their departments

3. Build and strengthen relationships within the broader professional community

- Consider joining APA, or UPA, as a full member
- Attend APA and other national/international professional conferences (AGPA, SPR)
- Subscribe to listserves of associations discussing concerns relevant to my interests
- Encourage undergraduate students and mentees to present at scholarly conferences (RMPA, NASPR)

Scholarship Strategies Project

As a professional-track faculty member, the requirements in my department heavily emphasize providing clinical service to students. This makes it easy to forget about or neglect longer-term research projects. As such, the following goals and strategies are designed to make research a regular activity in my schedule, with meaningful goals that will keep me moving forward.

1. Scholarship goals (to be completed by Feb. 2019)

- Meet or exceed departmental standards of scholarship for professional-track faculty (Average of 1 dissemination/year)
- Complete a draft of the Essential Oils study for publication
- Present preliminary Presidential Election data at APA
- Obtain CCMH data for Presidential Election study
- Involve and mentor undergraduate students in research
- Attend or have work presented at regional, national, and international conferences in my discipline and areas of emphasis

2. Strategies for scholarly productivity

- Possibly join APA/UPA as a full psychologist member, attend conferences, and network with other professionals to collaborate on future research
- Attend Green Chair and Whiff Busters research teams weekly
 - Contribute substantially to IRB proposals, data gathering, and writing efforts
- Meet with mentor regularly and discuss research progress and which conferences to attend

3. Methods for evaluating success

- Completion and dissemination of 1-2 projects per year
 - At least one/year as first or second author
- Regularly report to mentor and department director on scholarly progress
- Students as co-authors on projects

Description

This course is designed to provide Resident Assistants with the necessary theoretical, experiential and practical knowledge to help with the residents over whom you have stewardship in your RA role. We will focus on learning and developing the skills necessary for leadership, communication skills, handling and resolving relational conflict, and positive community building. The hope is that in the process of learning and implementing these values and skills, we will encourage both spiritual and academic growth in our selves as well as those we serve in our capacity as a Resident Assistant, namely our residents, housing staff, hall advisors, and instructors.

Grading Policy

Quizzes: During the semester a series of 10 quizzes will be administered through BYU Learning Suite. Each of these quizzes will be worth 10 points and based on the lectures and powerpoints used in class. It is YOUR responsibility to take the quizzes for each week a quiz is administered through BYU Learning Suite. The last day you can take a quiz is the Tuesday of the next week after it is assigned. It is permissible to use the powerpoint presentations to help find the answers to different quiz items. These powerpoint files will be posted and can also be found within BYU Learning Suite. These 10 quizzes will be worth a total of 100 points.

Attendance and Participation: See heading for Attendance Policy for how one gains attendance points. Attendance points will be worth a total of 240 points.

Final: What They Never Told Me as an RA

Description: The Final will be a project that you will do with the other Resident Assistants you work with in your area (associate group). For the Final you will choose a topic and have it approved by the instructor. You will then write up a 3-5 page manual of what you wished you had known when you first became an RA. The paper must have at minimum 2 citations on your topic. In addition, you will put together a PowerPoint presentation and give an 8 minute presentation on your topic to be presented to the class on the last day (April 15). The key to getting a good grade on this assignment is to make it professional. The manual you are making should be presented in a format where I could hand it over to an incoming RA and they would fully be able to understand it and find it very useful as they start out their RA career next fall.

Points: 100

The Paper and Presentation will be graded on the following criteria:

Grammar and Spelling	15%
Organization, structure, and presentation format of the paper	25%
Level of research and understanding of the problem	25%
Professional nature of your presentation	35%

Attendance Policy

Attendance and Participation: Attendance at the weekly (Tues) class is mandatory and 15 points will be deducted from your final grade for every class period missed. If you have extenuating circumstances, or reasons for missing class, such as attendance at a conference, arrangements need to be made with the instructor PRIOR to class, or in case of emergency contact me as soon as possible following the emergency, at which time I can assess the situation. I reserve the right to make concessions in these cases regarding allotment of points and grading.

A roll will be passed around each class period. YOU ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR ENSURING THAT YOU HAVE MARKED YOUR NAME ON THE ROLL EACH WEEK! Please do not mark the roll for anyone other than yourself.

Teaching Philosophy

This class takes a Learning-Centered Philosophy to teaching. This modality moves away from a passive learning approach style and allows the student to have more decision-making power in their learning in an effort to motivate students to take more responsibility in the learning process. Accordingly, this class will use a lot of different teaching techniques that promote and help the students become more involved in their learning. Learning-centered teaching modalities include: class room discussions, role plays, small group activities, group and individual presentations, student-to-student teaching moments, and at times the traditional lecture style approach. The reason this style is used in this class is to help you as RA's to have experiential teaching moments to ensure you gain the skills needed to help and assist your residents.

University Policies

Honor Code

In keeping with the principles of the BYU Honor Code, students are expected to be honest in all of their academic work. Academic honesty means, most fundamentally, that any work you present as your own must in fact be your own work and not that of another. Violations of this principle may result in a failing grade in the course and additional disciplinary action by the university. Students are also expected to adhere to the Dress and Grooming Standards. Adherence demonstrates respect for yourself and others and ensures an effective learning and working environment. It is the university's expectation, and every instructor's expectation in class, that each student will abide by all Honor Code standards. Please call the Honor Code Office at 422-2847 if you have questions about those standards.

Sexual Misconduct

In accordance with Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, Brigham Young University prohibits unlawful sex discrimination against any participant in its education programs or activities. The university also prohibits sexual harassment-including sexual violence-committed by or against students, university employees, and visitors to campus. As outlined in university policy, sexual harassment, dating violence, domestic violence, sexual assault, and stalking are considered forms of "Sexual Misconduct" prohibited by the university.

University policy requires all university employees in a teaching, managerial, or supervisory role to report all incidents of Sexual Misconduct that come to their attention in any way, including but not limited to face-to-face conversations, a written class assignment or paper, class discussion, email, text, or social media post. Incidents of Sexual Misconduct should be reported to the Title IX Coordinator at t9coordinator@byu.edu or (801) 422-8692. Reports may also be submitted through EthicsPoint at <https://titleix.byu.edu/report> or 1-888-238-1062 (24-hours a day).

BYU offers confidential resources for those affected by Sexual Misconduct, including the university's Victim Advocate, as well as a number of non-confidential resources and services that may be helpful. Additional information about Title IX, the university's Sexual Misconduct Policy, reporting requirements, and resources can be found at <http://titleix.byu.edu> or by contacting the university's Title IX Coordinator.

Student Disability

Brigham Young University is committed to providing a working and learning atmosphere that reasonably accommodates qualified persons with disabilities. If you have any disability which may impair your ability to complete this course successfully, please contact the University Accessibility Center (UAC), 2170 WSC or 422-2767. Reasonable academic accommodations are reviewed for all students who have qualified, documented disabilities. The UAC can also assess students for learning, attention, and emotional concerns. Services are coordinated with the student and instructor by the UAC. If you need assistance or if you feel you have been unlawfully discriminated against on the basis of disability, you may seek resolution through established grievance policy and procedures by contacting the Equal Employment Office at 422-5895, D-285 ASB.

Academic Honesty

The first injunction of the Honor Code is the call to "be honest." Students come to the university not only to improve their minds, gain knowledge, and develop skills that will assist them in their life's work, but also to build character. "President David O. McKay taught that character is the highest aim of education" (The Aims of a BYU Education, p.6). It is the purpose of the BYU Academic Honesty Policy to assist in fulfilling that aim. BYU students should seek to be totally honest in their dealings with others. They should complete their own work and be evaluated based upon that work. They should avoid academic dishonesty and misconduct in all its forms, including but not limited to plagiarism, fabrication or falsification, cheating, and other academic misconduct.

Devotional Attendance

Brigham Young University's devotional and forum assemblies are an important part of your BYU experience. President Cecil O. Samuelson said, "We have special and enlightening series of devotional and forum assemblies...that will complement, supplement, and enrich what will also be a very productive period in your classrooms, laboratories, and libraries. We look forward to being with you each Tuesday...and hope that you will regularly attend and bring your friends and associates with you...A large part of what constitutes the unique 'BYU experience' is found in these gatherings where the Spirit has been invited and where we have the opportunity to discuss and consider things of ultimate worth and importance that are not afforded to the academic community on almost any other campus" (from the address "The Legacy of Learning", 30 August, 2005). Your attendance at each forum and devotional is strongly encouraged.

Plagiarism

Intentional plagiarism is a form of intellectual theft that violates widely recognized principles of academic integrity as well as the Honor Code. Such plagiarism may subject the student to appropriate disciplinary action administered through the university Honor Code Office, in addition to academic sanctions that may be applied by an instructor. Inadvertent plagiarism, which may not be a violation of the Honor Code, is nevertheless a form of intellectual carelessness that is unacceptable in the academic community. Plagiarism of any kind is completely contrary to the established practices of higher education where all members of the university are expected to acknowledge the original intellectual work of others that is included in their own work. In some cases, plagiarism may also involve violations of copyright law. Intentional Plagiarism-Intentional plagiarism is the deliberate act of representing the words, ideas, or data of another as one's own without providing proper attribution to the author through quotation, reference, or footnote. Inadvertent Plagiarism-Inadvertent plagiarism involves the inappropriate, but non-deliberate, use of another's words, ideas, or data without proper attribution. Inadvertent plagiarism usually results from an ignorant failure to follow established rules for documenting sources or from simply not being sufficiently careful in research and writing. Although not a violation of the Honor Code, inadvertent plagiarism is a form of academic misconduct for which an instructor can impose appropriate academic sanctions. Students who are in doubt as to whether they are providing proper attribution have the responsibility to consult with their instructor and obtain guidance. Examples of plagiarism include: Direct Plagiarism-The verbatim copying of an original source without acknowledging the source. Paraphrased Plagiarism-The paraphrasing, without acknowledgement, of ideas from another that the reader might mistake for the author's own. Plagiarism Mosaic-The borrowing of words, ideas, or data from an original source and blending this original material with one's own without acknowledging the source. Insufficient Acknowledgement-The partial or incomplete attribution of words, ideas, or data from an original source. Plagiarism may occur with respect to unpublished as well as published material. Copying another student's work and submitting it as one's own individual work without proper attribution is a serious form of plagiarism.

Respectful Environment

"Sadly, from time to time, we do hear reports of those who are at best insensitive and at worst insulting in their comments to and about others... We hear derogatory and sometimes even defamatory comments about those with different political, athletic, or ethnic views or experiences. Such behavior is completely out of place at BYU, and I enlist the aid of all to monitor carefully and, if necessary, correct any such that might occur here, however inadvertent or unintentional. "I worry particularly about demeaning comments made about the career or major choices of women or men either directly or about members of the BYU community generally. We must remember that personal agency is a fundamental principle and that none of us has the right or option to criticize the lawful choices of another." President Cecil O. Samuelson, Annual University Conference, August 24, 2010 "Occasionally, we ... hear reports that our female faculty feel disrespected, especially by students, for choosing to work at BYU, even though each one has been approved by the BYU Board of Trustees. Brothers and sisters, these things ought not to be. Not here. Not at a university that shares a constitution with the School of the Prophets." Vice President John S. Tanner, Annual University Conference, August 24, 2010

Student Development 358R: Student Leadership Development

Below is a syllabus for this course.

Course Development Grant Proposal

The Student Leadership Development course is not a typical lecture format class. In fact, it utilizes a flipped classroom setting that encourages students to read and review class material and take a quiz on the subject matter before attending class. During the 50 minutes in class, students are encouraged to apply the material they have learned directly to the residents they mentor. In order to facilitate this type of learning, much of the class time consists of highlighting challenging topics, demonstrating through role-plays, through open discussion among classmates, and projection of videos.

Such an engaging classroom setting requires extensive planning and preparation. Given that much of my time is spent traveling back-and-forth between locations on campus, and spent in meetings away from my office, I plan to use this grant to purchase an Apple iPad. Having an iPad allows for greatly mobility and portability, which is accommodating to the virtual laden community in which I live. In my research of which device would be best for my purposes, I concluded that the 2017 version of Apple's product called "iPad" is that best fit for my needs. It has adequate processing power, excellent screen resolution, a long enough battery life to last through the workday, is compatible with the 358R classroom projector, enables presentation software, and (most importantly) fits within the allotted funds from this grant ($275.99).

With increased mobility, comes increased risk for damage and wear. Therefore, I would also like to purchase a compatible keyboard case ($25.99) that serves dual functions: protection and productivity. The combination of these two items max out the allotted funds, and enable me to be more productive with my time to prepare engaging classroom activities and video compilations for StDev 358R.

Final

Due: Tuesday, Apr 17 at 4:00 pm

Final:

Title: What They Never Told Me as an RA

Description: The Final will be a project that you will do with the other Resident Assistants you work with in your area (associate group). For the Final you will choose a topic and have it approved by the instructor. You will then write up a 3-5 page manual of what you wished you had known when you first became an RA. The paper must have at minimum 2 citations on your topic. In addition, you will put together a PowerPoint presentation and give an 8 minute presentation on your topic to be presented to the class on the last day (April 15). The key to getting a good grade on this assignment is to make it professional. The manual you are making should be presented in a format where I could hand it over to an incoming RA and they would fully be able to understand it and find it very useful as they start out their RA career next fall.

Points: 100

The Paper and Presentation will be graded on the following criteria:

Grammar and Spelling	15%
Organization, structure, and presentation format of the paper	25%
Level of research and understanding of the problem	25%
Professional nature of your presentation	35%

University Policies

Honor Code

In keeping with the principles of the BYU Honor Code, students are expected to be honest in all of their academic work. Academic honesty means, most fundamentally, that any work you present as your own must in fact be your own work and not that of another. Violations of this principle may result in a failing grade in the course and additional disciplinary action by the university. Students are also expected to adhere to the Dress and Grooming Standards. Adherence demonstrates respect for yourself and others and ensures an effective learning and working environment. It is the university's expectation, and every instructor's expectation in class, that each student will abide by all Honor Code standards. Please call the Honor Code Office at 422-2847 if you have questions about those standards.

Sexual Misconduct

In accordance with Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, Brigham Young University prohibits unlawful sex discrimination against any participant in its education programs or activities. The university also prohibits sexual harassment-including sexual violence-committed by or against students, university employees, and visitors to campus. As outlined in university policy, sexual harassment, dating violence, domestic violence, sexual assault, and stalking are considered forms of "Sexual Misconduct" prohibited by the university.

University policy requires all university employees in a teaching, managerial, or supervisory role to report all incidents of Sexual Misconduct that come to their attention in any way, including but not limited to face-to-face conversations, a written class assignment or paper, class discussion, email, text, or social media post. Incidents of Sexual Misconduct should be reported to the Title IX Coordinator at t9coordinator@byu.edu or (801) 422-8692. Reports may also be submitted through EthicsPoint at <https://titleix.byu.edu/report> or 1-888-238-1062 (24-hours a day).

BYU offers confidential resources for those affected by Sexual Misconduct, including the university's Victim Advocate, as well as a number of non-confidential resources and services that may be helpful. Additional information about Title IX, the university's Sexual Misconduct Policy, reporting requirements, and resources can be found at <http://titleix.byu.edu> or by contacting the university's Title IX Coordinator.

Student Disability

Brigham Young University is committed to providing a working and learning atmosphere that reasonably accommodates qualified persons with disabilities. If you have any disability which may impair your ability to complete this course successfully, please contact the University Accessibility Center (UAC), 2170 WSC or 422-2767. Reasonable academic accommodations are reviewed for all students who have qualified, documented disabilities. The UAC can also assess students for learning, attention, and emotional concerns. Services are coordinated with the student and instructor by the UAC. If you need assistance or if you feel you have been unlawfully discriminated against on the basis of disability, you may seek resolution through established grievance policy and procedures by contacting the Equal Employment Office at 422-5895, D-285 ASB.

Academic Honesty

The first injunction of the Honor Code is the call to "be honest." Students come to the university not only to improve their minds, gain knowledge, and develop skills that will assist them in their life's work, but also to build character. "President David O. McKay taught that character is the highest aim of education" (The Aims of a BYU Education, p.6). It is the purpose of the BYU Academic Honesty Policy to assist in fulfilling that aim. BYU students should seek to be totally honest in their dealings with others. They should complete their own work and be evaluated based upon that work. They should avoid academic dishonesty and misconduct in all its forms, including but not limited to plagiarism, fabrication or falsification, cheating, and other academic misconduct.

Devotional Attendance

Brigham Young University's devotional and forum assemblies are an important part of your BYU experience. President Cecil O. Samuelson said, "We have special and enlightening series of devotional and forum assemblies...that will complement, supplement, and enrich what will also be a very productive period in your classrooms, laboratories, and libraries. We look forward to being with you each Tuesday...and hope that you will regularly attend and bring your friends and associates with you...A large part of what constitutes the unique 'BYU experience' is found in these gatherings where the Spirit has been invited and where we have the opportunity to discuss and consider things of ultimate worth and importance that are not afforded to the academic community on almost any other campus" (from the address "The Legacy of Learning", 30 August, 2005). Your attendance at each forum and devotional is strongly encouraged.

Plagiarism

Intentional plagiarism is a form of intellectual theft that violates widely recognized principles of academic integrity as well as the Honor Code. Such plagiarism may subject the student to appropriate disciplinary action administered through the university Honor Code Office, in addition to academic sanctions that may be applied by an instructor. Inadvertent plagiarism, which may not be a violation of the Honor Code, is nevertheless a form of intellectual carelessness that is unacceptable in the academic community. Plagiarism of any kind is completely contrary to the established practices of higher education where all members of the university are expected to acknowledge the original intellectual work of others that is included in their own work. In some cases, plagiarism may also involve violations of copyright law. Intentional Plagiarism-Intentional plagiarism is the deliberate act of representing the words, ideas, or data of another as one's own without providing proper attribution to the author through quotation, reference, or footnote. Inadvertent Plagiarism-Inadvertent plagiarism involves the inappropriate, but non-deliberate, use of another's words, ideas, or data without proper attribution. Inadvertent plagiarism usually results from an ignorant failure to follow established rules for documenting sources or from simply not being sufficiently careful in research and writing. Although not a violation of the Honor Code, inadvertent plagiarism is a form of academic misconduct for which an instructor can impose appropriate academic sanctions. Students who are in doubt as to whether they are providing proper attribution have the responsibility to consult with their instructor and obtain guidance. Examples of plagiarism include: Direct Plagiarism-The verbatim copying of an original source without acknowledging the source. Paraphrased Plagiarism-The paraphrasing, without acknowledgement, of ideas from another that the reader might mistake for the author's own. Plagiarism Mosaic-The borrowing of words, ideas, or data from an original source and blending this original material with one's own without acknowledging the source. Insufficient Acknowledgement-The partial or incomplete attribution of words, ideas, or data from an original source. Plagiarism may occur with respect to unpublished as well as published material. Copying another student's work and submitting it as one's own individual work without proper attribution is a serious form of plagiarism.

Respectful Environment

"Sadly, from time to time, we do hear reports of those who are at best insensitive and at worst insulting in their comments to and about others... We hear derogatory and sometimes even defamatory comments about those with different political, athletic, or ethnic views or experiences. Such behavior is completely out of place at BYU, and I enlist the aid of all to monitor carefully and, if necessary, correct any such that might occur here, however inadvertent or unintentional. "I worry particularly about demeaning comments made about the career or major choices of women or men either directly or about members of the BYU community generally. We must remember that personal agency is a fundamental principle and that none of us has the right or option to criticize the lawful choices of another." President Cecil O. Samuelson, Annual University Conference, August 24, 2010 "Occasionally, we ... hear reports that our female faculty feel disrespected, especially by students, for choosing to work at BYU, even though each one has been approved by the BYU Board of Trustees. Brothers and sisters, these things ought not to be. Not here. Not at a university that shares a constitution with the School of the Prophets." Vice President John S. Tanner, Annual University Conference, August 24, 2010
